me hunger for more of America's TRUE history. The author has done a most excellent job of reminding his audience of the greatness of our nation and when, where, and why we began to spiral downwards. He places the blame on dogmatic principles that govern the politics of Demoncrats. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. I saw the author on Frances and Friends (SBN) a couple of weeks ago. He starting telling America's history in a way that shocked me. But I am not surprised because the meat of American History is being stripped away by those who can't handle the truth. Get this book if you want to know your history!!! 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. I've always liked Ben Kinchlow from the 700 Club By Customer NCI've always liked Ben Kinchlow from the 700 Club, and this book does not change that. It gave me a good understanding of the Black-to-White mindset plus the issues that blacks deal with. This book covers an historical background to the reasons for those issues as well as a sane approach to considerations that address what seem like insurmountable problems without surrendering cultural differences.

Ben Kinchlow, a familiar face to tens of millions around the world as Pat Robertsons long-time, softspoken co-host of the 700 Club, comes out swinging against political correctness in Black Yellow-Dogs. The long-time yellow-dog Democrat (one who votes Democratic, period, no matter what, even if a yellow dog were running) exposes the insidious century-long history of racism inside the party from the time its military wing, the Ku Klux Klan, systematically lynched blacks and white Republicans alike through the partys obstructionist role in passing the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Kinchlow warns black Americans who have engaged in a deadly game of follow the leader to beware . . . if the blind guide the blind, both shall fall into a pit. In this concise and shocking history of how the Democratic Party successfully covered up its shameful past in a successful effort to co-opt the black vote, Ben Kinchlow calls on all Americans black and white to do something theyve failed to do for the last 150 years: Learn the facts. Think for yourself.
