From Barbara Creed : Body Trade: Captivity, Cannibalism and Colonialism in the Pacific before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Body Trade: Captivity, Cannibalism and Colonialism in the Pacific:

Body Trade exposes myths surrounding the trade in heads, cannibalism, captive white women, the display of indigenous people in fairs and circuses, the stolen generations, the 'comfort' women and the making of the exotic/erotic body. This is a lively and intriguing contribution to the study of the postcolonial body.

"Both camps should welcome this compendium of essays that takes as its focus the notion of the subjugated, captive body, a central construct in recent debates in feminist theory, postcolonial theory, psychoanalysis, and theories of narrativity." Body Trade is the first book to present theories of the body in relation to the colonial histories of Australia and the Pacific. "The Contemporary Pacific Fall, 2003."
