Janet Bengé, Geoff Bengé : Christian Heroes Books 6-10 Gift Set (Christian Heroes: Then Now) (Displays and Gift Sets) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Christian Heroes Books 6-10 Gift Set (Christian Heroes: Then Now) (Displays and Gift Sets):

I thought they were fascinating. I have now read about fifteen of these books to my kids (ages 6 and 9), and they keep asking for more. I do think, though, that this set is somewhat less interesting than books 1-5 (and subsequent books grow somewhat less interesting, though they are still pretty good). I guess there's a reason the authors chose to do the other missionaries first--they picked the most interesting stories to do first, and when those were successful, they moved on to these. I would recommend starting with the first set first. For example, the biography here about Jim Eliot is pretty good, but the biography of Nate Saint in the first collection was better (both I and my kids agreed). This is an interesting comparison, because they both culminate in the same events (the outreach to the Auca Indians, where both Jim Eliot and Nate Saint died). We happened to read this one first, then sometime later read the biography of Nate Saint. This one gets bogged down more in details; maybe Nate Saint had a more varied life, so one could say more about him. I was also surprised that the story about Jim Eliot in here has significantly less detail about the aftermath than does the one about Nate Saint. On the other hand, the biographies of George Mueller and Mary Slessor were extremely interesting. You should definitely read those. (But you really should also read the ones in volumes 1-5.)

we were pleased with the concise
By Gil Turley
As soon as my wife and I finished the first set of five volumes of this Christian Heroes series, we quickly ordered this second set. Once again, we were pleased with the concise, readable accounts of amazing people of faith. Now I am looking forward to meeting these five heroes in Heaven some day.

By RedeemedBought these books to read to the kids for Family devotions. Started reading them before bed and can't seem to put them down because they inspire and challenge me so much. We know nothing of the hardships these dear saints faced to get the gospel to the masses. Any wonder why Satan's minions have taken over our country and stripped away our freedoms! God help us to wake up and live boldly before the trumpet sounds like our brethren did in past generations!

Written specifically to challenge readers with the powerful lives of Christians who have profoundly shaped history, these books answer today's call for positive role models and for opportunities to see how God works through the lives of those who follow Him. These exciting true stories inspire readers as they witness the amazing lives of these heroes unfold.

Books 6-10 Gift Set includes:
Eric Liddell: Something Greater Than Gold
William Carey: Obligated to Go
George Muller: The Guardian of Bristol's Orphans
Jim Elliot: One Great Purpose
Mary Slessor: Forward into Calabar
