Five Stars By Slainte Crunchie A Great read about growing up in north Dublin and becoming a famous Irish Birdwatcher. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Lovely and Well Written By Me, Myself and Thighs Gave this book to my mum, an avid reader. She said it was one of the best books she'd read in a long time! Highly recommend.

`Paul, my brother, still questions whether I was born or if, in fact, I was hatched.' Eric Dempsey is mad about birds. In fact, they have changed his whole life. Having once been gainfully employed by a semi-state company in a secure, pensionable job, he gave it all up to dedicate his life to birdwatching. In this remarkable memoir, Eric tells us of his love of nature from his earliest days and how it has influenced him throughout his life, inspiring many adventures, including trips around the world. In doing so, he provides a snapshot of growing up in Dublin in the '60s and '70s. Peppered with stories that are both hilarious and poignant, such as instructing his parents not to die in autumn (it's the best time for birdwatching) and going on safari to fulfil the dream of a friend who had passed away, this book will make you laugh, cry, and everything in between. Some people spend all their lives dreaming of following their passion; Eric Dempsey's memoir reveals a life all the more rewarding for doing so. `A joyously honest chronicle of birding.' Michael Viney `An inspirational story.' Dick Warner
