If you are a student of the biblical prophets, this is a handy little guide if you want to compare biblical prophets to those in the ANE. Most of the book is comprised of the prophets from Mari and Ashurbanipal's library (including prophecies for Esarhaddon). There are also a few West Semitic prophecies.2 of 3 people found the following review helpful. good textBy Eric OThis is a good, introductory text to use while study the Bible in it's ANE context. It helps to be able to place the books in the historical situations to understand the world of that time.2 of 4 people found the following review helpful. Great primary sourceBy Aaron ChristiansonIt is what it says. It has prophecy form the Ancient Near East in Akkadian transcription and English translation. I couldn't ask for more (especially as my cuneiform is falling off these days!)

This is the first book to gather the available ancient Near Eastern extrabiblical sources containing prophetic words or references to prophetic activities. Among the 140 texts included in this volume are oracles of prophets, personal letters, formal inscriptions, and administrative documents from ancient Mesopotamia and Levant from the second and first millennia B.C.E. By collecting and presenting evidence of the activities of prophets and the phenomenon of prophecy from all over the ancient Near East, the volume illumines the cultural background of biblical prophecy and its parallels. It makes these valuable primary source materials accessible to students and general readers in contemporary English along with transcriptions of the original languages, indexes, and an extensive bibliography.
