From The Catholic University of America Press : Remapping the History of Catholicism in the United States: Essays from the U.S. Catholic Historian before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Remapping the History of Catholicism in the United States: Essays from the U.S. Catholic Historian:

For more than thirty years, the U.S. Catholic Historian has mapped the diverse terrain of American Catholicism. This collection of recent essays tells the story of Catholics previously underappreciated by historians: women, African Americans, Latinos, Asian Americans, and those on the frontier and borderlands. Timothy Matovina's opening essay sets the theme for the volume, encouraging a remapping of U.S. Catholic history to more widely encompass its various localities and peoples, especially the significance of non-European ethnic and racial groups and specifically the role of Latino Catholics.

"This assembly of essays from the U.S. Catholic Historian, including seven of the most popular contributions of recent years, may serve as a model for the historians engaged in the effort of charting the complexity and diversity of American Catholicism." -from the foreword by David J. Endres
