An essential text of Qabalistic magicBy Dominus LiminisThe Sefer ha-Razim, which may date back to the first centuries AD, is one of the oldest texts of Jewish magic or practical Qabalah. In medieval times, fragments of it were incorporated into the famous Sefer Raziel. Michael A. Morgan used dozens of fragmentary manuscripts to finally reconstruct this amazing text in its entirety. The Sefer ha-Razim consists of a listing of the angels and choirs of angels of the 7 Heavens, and the magical uses for which they may be called. Dozens of rituals and spells are provided, for healing, evocation of spirits, reading thoughts, protection, to win at horse races, to reverse a court decision, to see the sun at night, to predict the future, to perform wonders, etc. This text also shows Greek influence, and includes rituals involving Helios and Aphrodite. In short, this is an essential work for anyone interested in Qabalistic magic and the western esoteric tradition.2 of 3 people found the following review helpful. The seven palacesBy Didier SOne of the rare books opening - in english - for the reader the path of the Palaces, along with the Book of Enoch.Scolarely minded but very usefull for the regular student of jewish mysticism.

This work is an annotated translation of the Margalioth Hebrew text of Sepher Ha-Razim, which makes available for the first time in English this important collection of late antique Jewish magic. Dating to the fourth century C.E., this magical handbook contains instructions and invocations to be used in various magical praxes. A fine example of the syncretistic nature of the Hellenistic world, Sepher Ha-Razim gives some indication of the tensions between a developing/ orthodoxy and a popular religion. The text shows parallels to the Greek magical papyri and an interesting use of Merkabah symbolism.
