Juan Bautista Chapa : Texas and Northeastern Mexico, 1630-1690 before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Texas and Northeastern Mexico, 1630-1690:

by the early Europeans in NE Mexico and SE Texas. A part of American history that is not discussed and or contemplated because if it were, I believe there would be a better understanding of the forces that shaped that part of the new world and influenced the contemporary world of Texas and NE Mexico.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Winner, Presidio La Baha Award, Sons of the Republic of TexasIn the seventeenth century, South Texas and Northeastern Mexico formed El Nuevo Reino de Len, a frontier province of New Spain. In 1690, Juan Bautista Chapa penned a richly detailed history of Nuevo Len for the years 1630 to 1690. Although his Historia de Nuevo Len was not published until 1909, it has since been acclaimed as the key contemporary document for any historical study of Spanish colonial Texas. This book offers the only accurate and annotated English translation of Chapa's Historia. In addition to the translation, William C. Foster also summarizes the Discourses of Alonso de Len (the elder), which cover the years 1580 to 1649. In the appendix, Foster includes a translation of Alonso (the younger) de Len's previously unpublished revised diary of the 1690 expedition to East Texas and an alphabetical listing of over 80 Indian tribes identified in this book. Chapa was also an authority on the local Indians, and his Historia lists the names and locations of over 300 Indian tribes. This information, together with descriptions of the vegetation, wildlife, and climate in seventeenth-century Texas, make this book essential reading for ethnographers, anthropologists, and biogeographers, as well as students and scholars of Spanish borderlands history.
