Nicholas Canny, Philip Morgan : The Oxford Handbook of the Atlantic World: 1450-1850 (Oxford Handbooks) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Oxford Handbook of the Atlantic World: 1450-1850 (Oxford Handbooks):

The essays in this volume provide a comprehensive overview of Atlantic history from c.1450 to c.1850, offering a wide-ranging and authoritative account of the movement of people, plants, pathogens, products, and cultural practices--to mention some of the key agents--around and within the Atlantic basin. As a result of these movements, new peoples, economies, societies, polities, and cultures arose in the lands and islands touched by the Atlantic Ocean, while others were destroyed.

"[A] welcome collection of essays by some of the most forward thinking scholars in Atlantic History...[T]here is something for everyone interested in the history of the Atlantic World. In fact, the broad spectrum of research presented is perhaps the most exciting aspect of the work...[A] truly excellent collection of essays."--Itinerario
"The list of contributors and breadth of coverage are very impressive...[T]he volume is expertly edited and, like others in the series, nicely produced...Highly recommended."--CHOICE
About the Author
Nicholas Canny has published widely on the history of early modern Ireland, early modern Britain, and the history of European colonization more generally, including Making Ireland British, 1580-1650 (2001) and (as editor) volume one in the Oxford History of the British Empire series, Origins of Empire (1998). Philip Morgan is the author of Atlantic History: A Critical Appraisal (2009) and Black Experience and the Empire (2004), both published by Oxford University Press.
