

(Read download) The Suppressed History of America: The Murder of Meriwether Lewis and the Mysterious Discoveries of the Lewis and Clark Expedition

The Suppressed History of America: The Murder of Meriwether Lewis and the Mysterious Discoveries of the Lewis and Clark Expedition

Paul Schrag, Xaviant Haze
audiobook / *ebooks / Download PDF / ePub / DOC

DOWNLOAD

+

READ ONLINE

#93778 in Books Bear n Company 2011-05-20 2011-05-20Original language:EnglishPDF # 1 9.00 x .50 x 6.00l, .65 #File Name: 1591431220176 pages | File size: 48.Mb

Paul Schrag, Xaviant Haze : The Suppressed History of America: The Murder of Meriwether Lewis and the Mysterious Discoveries of the Lewis and Clark Expedition before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Suppressed History of America: The Murder of Meriwether Lewis and the Mysterious Discoveries of the Lewis and Clark Expedition:

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Lost me. By reader leader Lost interest as the book changed its focus to the murder/suicide discussions and the politics of it all. Enjoyed the description of the journey across the Continent. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. making a very good case for murder By Julia D Russler Very well written, all presented facts are well documented, making a very good case for murder. At the same time the author is careful when he does not have enough evidence. From having checked other sources I know he did his research well. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. As much as I liked it I think photographs on sites mentioned and images ... By Vinny I was not sure what to expect but I was pleasantly surprised by the quality of the writing and the documentation. As much as I liked it I think photographs on sites mentioned and images of the conspirators mentioned would have easily given have been able to give it five stars. Well worth reading.

An investigation into the discoveries of Lewis and Clark and other early explorers of America and the terrible acts committed to suppress them Provides archaeological proof of giants, the fountain of youth, and descriptions from Lewiss journals of a tribe of nearly white, blue-eyed Indians Uncovers evidence of explorers from Europe and Asia prior to Columbus and of ancient civilizations in North America and the Caribbean Investigates the Smithsonian conspiracy to cover up Lewis and Clarks discoveries and what lead to Lewiss murder Meriwether Lewis discovered far more than the history books tell--ancient civilizations, strange monuments, nearly white, blue-eyed Indians, and evidence that the American continent was visited long before the first European settlers arrived. And he was murdered to keep it all secret. Examining the shadows and cracks between Americas official version of history, Xaviant Haze and Paul Schrag propose that the America of old taught in schools is not the America that was discovered by Lewis and Clark and other early explorers. Investigating the discoveries of Spanish conquistadors and Olmec stories of contact with European-like natives, the authors uncover evidence of explorers from Europe and Asia prior to Columbus, sophisticated ancient civilizations in North America and the Caribbean, the fountain of youth, and a long-extinct race of giants. Verifying stories from Lewiss journals with modern archaeological finds, geological studies, 18th- and 19th-century newspapers, and accounts of the world in the days of Columbus, the authors reveal how Lewis and Clarks finds infuriated powerful interests in Washington--including the Smithsonian Institution--culminating in the murder of Meriwether Lewis.

Authors Schrag and Haze teach a fascinating lesson in what we will never be taught but what every American should know. (Edward F. Malkowski, author of Sons of God--Daughters of Men, Before the Pharaohs, The Spiritual Tec) Set against the compelling backdrop of Lewis and Clarks historic first crossing of the North American continent, The Suppressed History of America breaks new ground and provides interesting food for thought, both for traditional students of American history and for those intrigued by the call of unresolved ancient mysteries. (Laird Scranton, author of The Cosmological Origins of Myth and Symbol and The Science of the Dogon) The Suppressed History of America . . . is a refreshing new addition to the field of the alternative history of the United States. Well researched and written, this book will serve to increase the interest in the full story of the great American explorer Meriwether Lewis. The authors present a cogent argument that Lewis was probably murdered, partly to cover up the profound discoveries he and Clark made in the early nineteenth century. (Stephen S. Mehler, author of The Land of Osiris and From Light Into Darkness). . . The Suppressed History of America contains all the undertones of a surreptitious political thriller. Encounters with the legendary Mandan Indians who are said to be the descendants of Welsh seafarers and other tribes forever lost to westward expansion speak volumes of what may have been discovered on their journey. (Fate Magazine, October 2011) Enhanced with a wealth of footnote documentation, an extensive bibliography, and a comprehensive index, The Suppressed History of America is a unique and seminal contribution highly recommended for community and academic library collections, as well as the personal reading lists of non-specialist general readers with an interest in American History as it is never taught in public education courses. (Midwest Book , October 2011) The Suppressed History of America is a thorough, well-documented, fast-paced exploration of the United States greatest mystery and adventure--the Lewis and Clark expedition. (chni Lele, author of Teachings of the Santera Gods and The Dilogn) From the Back Cover US HISTORY / CONSPIRACY Authors Schrag and Haze teach a fascinating lesson in what we will never be taught but what every American should know. --Edward F. Malkowski, author of Sons of God--Daughters of Men, Before the Pharaohs, The Spiritual Technology of Ancient Egypt, and Ancient Egypt 39,000 BCE Meriwether Lewis discovered far more than the history books tell--ancient civilizations, strange monuments, nearly white, blue-eyed Indians, and evidence that the American continent was visited long before the first European settlers arrived. And he may have been murdered to keep it all secret. Examining the shadows and cracks between Americas official version of history, Paul Schrag and Xaviant Haze propose that the America of old taught in schools is not the America that was discovered by Lewis and Clark and other early explorers. Investigating the discoveries of Spanish conquistadors and Olmec stories of contact with European-like natives, the authors uncover evidence of explorers from Europe and Asia prior to Columbus, sophisticated ancient civilizations in North America and the Caribbean, the fountain of youth, and a long-extinct race of giants. Verifying stories from Lewiss journals with modern archaeological finds, geological studies, 18th- and 19th-century newspaper articles, and accounts of the world in the days of Columbus, the authors reveal how Lewis and Clarks finds infuriated powerful interests in Washington--including the Smithsonian Institute--culminating in the murder of Meriwether Lewis. PAUL SCHRAG is an award-winning journalist, novelist, marketing and business consultant, photographer, and musician. XAVIANT HAZE is a freelance researcher of ancient manuscripts and alternative history. His career as a music producer and DJ allows him to travel the world, exploring and documenting his findings on lost cities and the myths of the pre-diluvian world. Both authors live in Tacoma, Washington.

About the Author Paul Schrag is an award-winning journalist, novelist, marketing and business consultant, photographer, and musician. Xaviant Haze is a freelance researcher of ancient manuscripts and alternative history. His career as a music producer and DJ allow him to travel the world, exploring and documenting his findings on lost cities and the myths of the pre-diluvian world. Both authors live in Tacoma, Washington.